NOTICE.

It is earnestly desired, that errors in the Triennial may be made known to the College Librarian. It is also requested, that copies of Class Memorials, notices of graduates, of their changes of residence, and of whatever will furnish materials for the history of the Alumni, may be sent as above, and in case of decease, that the date, with such particulars as may be interesting to friends, may be communicated.

OF

BOWDOIN COLLEGE,

1809. NATHAN LORD; b. S. Berwick, Nov. 28, 1792; d. Hanover, N. H., Sept. 9, 1870; æt 78. 1810–11 was assistant under the eminent Benj. Abbot, S.T.D., Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H.; pursued theological study with Rev. Mr. Jenks, Bath, and then in the seminary, Andover, graduating in 1815; was ordained May, 1816, over the church and society, Amherst, N. H.; in 1828 was called to the Presidency of Dartmouth College, and after distinguished service of forty-five years retired from office. Of superior intellectual and moral power, of strong, independent convictions, of great decision and fearlessness, of singular earnestness of life, of quick sympathies and of ready access, he was eminently fitted to exert influence. He was a vigorous writer on philosophical, moral and religious questions, and, to the last, enjoyed the respect, affection and grateful remembrance of pupils and of the community. He died in full assurance of the faith he had long held and preached. He received the honorary degree of D.D. from his Alma Mater in 1828, and of LL.D. from Dartmouth in 1864.

1812. JOHN PARKER BOYD; b. Portland, June 1, 1792; d. Portland, July 20, 1871, æt 79. Studied law; was admitted to the Cumberland bar, and practiced his profession in Portland, which was his permanent residence.

1814. CHARLES DUMMER; b. Hallowell; d. Hallowell, June 28, 1872, æt. 79. Studied law in Boston; opened an office in his native town with brilliant prospects; but a large portion of his active life was spent in Washington, D. C., where in the Treasury Department, through successive administrations, his accuracy and unwavering integrity secured confidence and respect. After years of service he retired; but his well-tried responsibility led to his re-call for a time to a special agency in the N. Y. custom house. His last years were spent in a charming residence in Hallowell. He was an earnest christian man, and adorned his profession of christian faith of many years. He was a member of the Overseers of the College before his removal to Washington, and after long absence was re-chosen to the Board.

1814. WILLIAM HENRY ROBBINS; b. Hallowell, Oct. 22, 1794; d. Cheraw, S. C., March, 1843, æt. 49. No intelligence of his death was obtained, though inquiries were made concerning him, until recently, when by letters from the South the following particulars were learned: He studied law in Hallowell, went to the South and entered the practice in Cheraw; he became a prominent member of the Chesterfield bar; was distinguished by strict and most honorable integrity, and secured universal confidence and esteem; was a devout and active christian man, and would have relinquished the bar for the pulpit had not feeble health during the last ten years of his life forbidden the change. He died greatly respected and lamented by a wide circle of friends.

1819. ADAM WILSON; b. Topsham. Feb. 3, 1794; d. Waterville, Jan. 16,1871, æt. 77. Near the close of his Freshman year he joined the Baptist Church just formed in his native town; studied theology with Dr. Stoughton, Philadelphia, and received ordination 1820; in 1822 he began a stated ministry at Wiscasset, and successively was settled as pastor or supply in New Gloucester, Turner, Bangor, Hebron, Paris, Buxton, and over feeble churches elsewhere, and to the last was abundant in ministerial labors; he was sought to take charge of the Zion's Advocate, a new enterprise, of which for several years he was proprietor and editor. His last years were passed in Waterville. For forty years he was a Trustee of Waterville College. A man of energy and industry, of decided character and marked wisdom and discretion, and of genial disposition, he ever had the respect, confidence and affection of the communion whose interests he espoused, and was eminently a good man. He died of typhoid pneumonia. In 1851 he received the degree of D. D. from Waterville.

1820. SAMUEL MORRILL; b. Wells, 1800; d. Boston, March 27, 1872, æt. 72. Studied medicine and graduated at Me. Med. School, 1823; settled in Boston, where he practiced through life.

1821. JOHN PAYNE CLEAVELAND; b. Byfield, Ms., July 19, 1798; d. Newburyport, March 7, 1873, æt. 75. He was a grandson of the distinguished Rev. John Cleaveland, Ipswich, Ms., and was brother by second marriage of Prof. Parker Cleaveland. He was fitted for college at Dummer Academy; in his Junior year he was led to consecrate his life to his Saviour; after graduation he was employed in teaching at Wolfboro', N. H., and in 1825 was appointed Professor of Mathematics at Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., in the meanwhile pursuing theological study; Feb., 1827, was ordained over the Tabernacle church, Salem, Ms., where he remained until 1834, and then was settled over a Presbyterian church, Detroit, Mich.; in 1837 he retired from the ministry for the Presidency of Marshall College, Mich.; through embarrassment in the funds he resigned his position, and accepted a call, Dec., 1841, to the second Presbyterian in Cincinnati, as successor of Rev. Dr. Lyman Beecher; April, 1844, he was installed over the Beneficent church, Providence, R. I., in 1851 over the First church, Northampton, Ms., and in April, 1855, over the Appleton street church, Lowell, whence he was dismissed in Jan., 1862; went out chaplain of 30th Mass. to Ship Island and New Orleans. He was not settled again, though rendering ministerial services as frequent opportunities presented. He was reputed a forcible preacher, and was often invited to take part on public occasions. His genial qualities won for him popularity, and his memory is held in grateful remembrance. He was seized with paralysis, at the Rowley station, Feb. 25, was conveyed to Newburyport, and buried from the Old South church.

1822. JOSEPH HALE ABBOTT; b. Wilton, N. H., Sept. 26, 1802; d. Cambridge, Ms., April 7, 1873, æt. 71. His middle name came from his mother, a niece of Capt. Nathan Hale of revolutionary fame. He held a Tutorship in 1825–7, and from 1827 to 1833 was Professor of Mathematics and teacher of modern languages in Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H. For several years he taught a school for young ladies in Boston, and more recently the High school in Beverly; for many years he was an active member, and for a time Recording Secretary, of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, to whose publications he contributed several papers of a scientific character; he paid much attention to hydraulic and pneumatic problems, and gave to the public several original and ingenious speculations; in the "ether controversy" he espoused the claims of Dr. Jackson, and wrote an earnest article in support of them; he assisted Dr. Worcester in the preparation of his English dictionary, and furnished many of its scientific definitions. His death was caused by paralysis.

1822. Joseph Libby; b. Buxton, Dec. 13, 1793; d. Portland, Aug. 27, 1871, æt. 78. Was trained to the trade of a blacksmith, and used to show the huge iron fastenings in the boom logs in Saco river, which he himself wrought. In his earnest desire for a public education, after his majority, he fitted for college under the distinguished master, Rev. Reuben Nason, Gorham Academy, and entered in 1817, and exhibiting admirable energy and perseverance completed his course. His chosen life work was that of a teacher of youth; he became master of the High school in Portland, and was a diligent, faithful, strenuous teacher; fitted many pupils for his Alma Mater. He held offices of trust, was an officer of the Third church in Portland, and for several years an Overseer of the College. He was of a strong mind, sound, independent judgment, fearless in expressing opinion, steadfast in the faith he had held for more than fifty years, and a diligent worker to the last week of his life.

1826. Jonas Merriam; b. Topsfield, May 12, 1804; d. Concord, N. H., May 27, 1871, æt. 67. After graduation taught school in Amherst, N. H. For several years he suffered from a disease of his eyes, which kept him in a darkened room. He lived for a time in Maine, espoused the doctrine of the second adventists, and publicly preached it; still later he lived in Lowell, Ms., and edited a paper in the interests of that sect. The last years of his life he made Concord, N. H., his home.

1826. Robert Southgate; b. Portland, Jan., 1808; d. Woodstock, Vt., Feb. 6, 1873, æt. 65. Went from college to the theological seminary at Andover; graduated 1829; was ordained Jan., 1832, over the Congregational church at Woodstock, Vt.; was installed, 1837, over the church in Wethersfield, Conn.; over the Presbyterian church, Monroe, Mich., in 1845; over the First church, Ipswich, Ms., in 1851, where he remained seventeen years; was stated supply over the Fourth church, Hartford, Ct., in 1868, and over that at Oxford, N. H., in 1869. Failing health caused him to suspend his labors, and he was stricken down with apoplexy and died with friends at his former home. He was a faithful and able minister of the gospel.

1827. Ichabod Jordan Goodwin; b. Saco, Oct. 6, 1806; d. Berwick, Feb. 21, 1873, æt. 66. Studied law, and for forty years was a member of the Strafford, N. H., and York county bar; was a decided democrat in politics; was senator in the N. H. legislature, 1854, and repeatedly a representative in that of Maine, his residence being on the border line of both States, and at different periods in each; was a zealous member of the masonic fraternity, and for a time Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of N. H. He was a man of position and influence.

1827. George Farrar Moulton; b. Bucksport, Sept. 25, 1806; d. Philadelphia, Nov. 20, 1872, æt. 66. He early went to Philadelphia, where for several years he was a teacher in private seminaries and in the families of prominent citizens, and won the regard and respect of both parents and pupils. Of great gentleness, of decided christian character, a good classical scholar, he was as in youth, so through life, wholly without pretension. Compelled by infirmity to relinquish teaching, he was for several years librarian and superintendent of the Philadelphia Athenæum, in which position, under severe bodily infliction, he had the confidence and high esteem of directors and visitors. His last years were years of infirmity and suffering, and his death was deeply lamented.

1829. Phinehas Barnes; b. Orland, Jan. 21, 1811; d. Portland, Aug. 21, 1871, æt. 61. Fitted at Phillips Andover Academy, and in college sustaining the highest rank for scholarship, he was well prepared for the Professorship of Latin and Greek to which he was invited from Waterville College in 1834, where for five years he discharged its duties with marked success. Changing his plan of life, he devoted himself to the law, studying his profession in the office of Charles S. Daveis, Esq., and settled in Portland. He rose to be a leading counsellor, and was employed in important cases; was solicitor of the Grand Trunk railway, director of the Portland Savings Bank, a trustee of the Atlantic & St. Lawrence railroad sinking fund, trustee of the Maine General Hospital and of the State Agricultural College; was interested in the political movements of the time, editor of the Portland Advertiser six years, was one of the leaders of the whig party, and a candidate for Governor of the State on the Bell and Everett ticket in 1840. He was a man of high culture, ever interested in the cause of popular education, giving personal attention to the oversight of the city schools; was deeply concerned for the elevation of the colored race and in the cause of colonization. His integrity and stability were never questioned. Suddenly attacked by a painful and fatal disease, he was not taken by surprise, making calm preparation for the event, as he characteristically expressed himself, "facing death very closely," and died in the peace of the gospel.

1829. JOSEPH CAMMET LOVEJOY; b. Albion, July 26, 1805; d. Cambridgeport, Ms., Oct. 21, 1871, æt. 66. Went from college to take charge of the academy at Hallowell; pursued a theological course at Bangor, and graduated in 1834; was settled over the Congregational church, Oldtown, and subsequently over one at Cambridgeport. Retiring from the ministry, his last twenty years were devoted to more active life; he entered into political action, at first tending to what might be termed radicalism, and more recently becoming highly conservative; a man of extreme views. He held office in the customs, Boston, and was capable of strong influence. His death was sudden.

1832. FREDERIC JORDAN GOODWIN; b. S. Berwick, April 30, 1812; d. Middletown, Conn., Feb. 29, 1872, æt. 60. The year after graduation had charge of the academy at Alfred; took a theological course at Bangor, Andover, and at the General Theological Semlnary, New York; was ordained deacon (Episcopal) 1836, and priest 1837; was Professor of Ancient Languages, Bristol College, Pa., 1856–7, and Professor ad interim of Latin in University of New York, 1837; was rector of St. George's at Flushing, L. I., 1837–1844; rector of the church of the Holy Trinity at Middletown, Conn., 1845–1872; Professor of the evidences of christianity in the Berkely Divinity School, 1854–1872. A faithful, diligent and discreet pastor, successful in restoring harmony to a divided people, he left his society at Middletown in a greatly improved condition. His last years were burdened by sickness and infirmity. His death from pneumonia was sudden but meekly triumphant.

1833. JOHN SLEMONS LUNT; b. Portland, Sept. 5, 1815; d. Deering, 1870, æt. 55. Read law in the office of Fessenden & Deblois, Portland. The last twenty years of his life he lived in what has been recently incorporated as the town of Deering.

1837. ANDREW DUNNING; b. Brunswick, July 11, 1815; d. Thompson, Conn., March 26, 1872, æt. 57. After graduation he entered Bangor Theological Seminary, completing the course in 1840; was ordained over the church and society in Plainfield, Conn.; in 1850 was installed over the church at Thompson, Conn., where he exercised his ministry until his death. A man of ability and culture, and a faithful minister of Christ, greatly respected and beloved. He died of lingering and painful disease, a cancerous affection.

1838. DEAN ANDREWS; b. Lovell, Feb. 15, 1808; d. Marshall, Ill., Sept. 14, 1872, æt. 64. Soon after taking his degree went to Illinois, and devoted himself to the consistent and untiring service of his Master and the cause of public education. To his indefatigable efforts are largely attributed the foundation of an advanced seminary of learning at Marshall, and the prosperity of the institution depended much on his personal influence and exertions; through his persevering efforts a Congregational church was organized, and a house of worship erected, in which he preached more than twenty years; was active and most efficient in promoting the best interests of the community. He was stricken down with apoplexy while at his morning devotions, and his removal was regarded by all classes as the loss of a genial, steadfast friend, and an irreparable public calamity and sorrow.

1842. LEONARD PARKER MERRILL; b. Brunswick, Sept. 27, 1821; d. New Orleans, Oct. 31, 1870, æt. 49. Studied law, and practiced his profession a few years in his native town; then suddenly, even to his friends, changed his plan of life, and shipped before the mast from Bath on a voyage around Cape Horn; rapidly rose to the command, and became one of our most capable and intelligent ship-masters, as a seaman and man of business. He fell a victim, after a brief sickness, of the New Orleans pest, the yellow fever. His home was always in Brunswick, and his sudden removal was lamented by a large circle of friends.

1844. ISAAC SOMES CUSHMAN; b. New Gloucester, Feb. 12, 1823; d. Winchendon, Ms., Sept. 6, 1870, æt. 47. Studied medicine, taking his degree in Me. Medical School in 1847, and practiced several years in Biddeford; then changed his purpose, pursued theological study in the Methodist Theological Institute, Concord, N. H., and entered the ministry, in which he rendered faithful service; was chaplain of 33d Mass. Vols., and afterwards assistant surgeon of the regiment.

1844. HENRY PADELFORD DEANE; b. Ellsworth, Oct. 9, 1823; d. Boston, March 25, 1873, æt. 49. Read law in Portland, where he opened an office in 1847; subsequently formed a co-partnership under the title of Deane & Verrill, and secured a lucrative practice; represented his city two successive terms in the legislature; was twice elected County Attorney; was Surveyor of the port, and a director of the Portland & Rochester R. R. His last years were embittered by disease; he went to Florida to avoid the winter, and, it was hoped, with advantage, but on his return home died at the Revere House, Boston.

1844. WILLIAM HENRY FARNHAM; b. Bangor, March 24, 1824; d. Selma, Ala., July 27, 1872, æt. 48. Spent twenty years in California; had removed to the South to engage in business; during the "heated term" of 1872 suffered a sun-stroke, and died in a few minutes.

1844. EDMUND WEBSTER FLAGG; b. Bangor, June 29, 1824; d. Bangor, Jan. 16, 1873, æt. 50. Studied and practiced law; was for several years Clerk of the Maine House of Representatives.

1845. LEWIS LEONARD RECORD; b. Minot, Sept. 1, 1816; d. Marlboro, N. H., December, 1871, æt. 55. Was for some time principal of an academy at Houlton; entered the ministry of the Universalist denomination, and maintained through life the character of a sincere, humble, upright man. During the late war he was chaplain of the 22d Mass.

1845. JOHN HANNIBAL SHEPPARD; b. Wiscasset, March 7, 1822; d. Boston, —, 1870, æt. 48. Studied medicine, and graduated M. D. Harvard, 1849; resided for several years in California.

1847. GEORGE NELSON RICHARDSON; b. Eastport, Nov. 27, 1827; d. Worcester, Ms., Sept. 11, 1870, æt. 43. As in college, so through life, a man of admirable qualities, scholarly, and of high culture; pursued a theological course, and exercised the ministry in the Unitarian communion; was resident in Westborough, Ms., but died in Worcester at the home of a sister. An unsuccessful effort was made to ascertain more particulars.

1848. William Frederic Goodwin; b. Buxton, Sept. 27, 1823; d. Concord, N. H., March 15, 1872, æt. 48. After graduation was employed in teaching in Choctaw Co., Mis., and in the High schools at Machias, Concord, N. H., and New Bedford, Ms., meanwhile reading law; graduated LL.B. Harv. 1854, and engaged in the practice at Concord, N. H.; was admitted to practice in the U. S. Supreme Court Dec., 1866, and removed to La Crosse, Wis., designing to exercise his profession; at the outbreak of the war returned to Maine, offered himself to the service, and was commissioned 1st Lieut., in May, 1861; was wounded at Chickamauga in Sept., 1863; breveted captain, but was disabled from service in the field, though employed in recruiting service; returned to Concord and resumed his profession. He was much given to historical and genealogical inquiries, and edited one number of the Historical Magazine, contributing largely to its pages.

1850. Thomas Robinson Smith; b. Bath, Nov. 27, 1830; d. Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 6, 1872, æt. 42. Soon after graduating he went South, and took charge of an academy at Bolivar, Tenn., meanwhile studying law; was admitted to the bar, and engaged in a prosperous practice, soon taking rank among the ablest of his age in the State; since the war has resided in Memphis; was appointed Judge of the Law Court in 1866, but held office only a few months, and then returned to active practice. He was esteemed an able counsellor and advocate, and was rapidly rising to distinction; was highly esteemed and respected by the profession, and an ornament of social life; was liberal in support of religion and of benevolent institutions, and a friend of young men. As President of the Board of Visitors was especially efficient in promoting the interests of the free schools of the city. His death, caused by pneumonia, was regarded as a public calamity.

1851. Daniel Lewis Eaton; b. Calais, Oct. 31, 1825; d. Washington, D. C., Feb. 22, 1873, æt. 47. Read law in Portland, where he opened an office, but afterwards removed to St. Louis, Mo. He edited a newspaper in Pittsburg, Pa. for some years. In the recent war he gave himself to his country's service; served as Paymaster on Gen. Heintzelman's staff with rank of Major; was subsequently breveted Lt. Col.; was appointed Actuary of the Freedman's Savings Bank, Washington, D. C., and contributed much by administrative talent to its success; resigning this position was elected Cashier of the Second Nat. Bank, Washington, and was highly esteemed as an energetic, prompt man of business, and of the strictest integrity. When the Territorial government was organized he was appointed by the President a member of the "Council" or Senate; was re-elected, and held the office at the time of his death. Was one of the founders of the Congregational church, Washington, and was ever an active and faithful member, a teacher in the Sabbath School, and a liberal supporter of every good work. After a long and painful sickness, he died in the peace and hope of the gospel.

1852. Joseph Dana Howard; b. Portland, July 15, 1833; d. New York, Jan. 15, 1872, æt. 38. Studied law with Messrs. Shepley & Dana, Portland, and was admitted to the bar; subsequently removed to New York with a view to his profession, but soon resolved to devote himself to literary pursuits as more congenial to his tastes and studies; for several years gave private instruction to young men preparing for college, and to young ladies in the higher branches of education; furnished articles for leading reviews and journals, as the North American and Atlantic Monthly; his articles on "The Moorish Dominions in Spain," "Christopher North," and the Poet Gray, are remembered with pleasure. He left several manuscripts apparently designed for publication, and was contemplating (indeed had funds in hand for the object) foreign travel.

A few days before his death, in apprehension that the sudden attack of pneumonia then upon him might prove fatal, he gave peremptory directions by letter to destroy all his manuscripts in case of his death. He had been invited to professorships, but uniformly declined. He was reputed to have made attainments wide, thorough and accurate.

1854. JOHN FREDERIC DEANE; b. Bangor, Sept. 3, 1834; d. New Orleans, December, 1871, æt. 37. Was a successful teacher of the High school at Bangor several years, meanwhile studying law. Removed to Texas, where he also was employed as a teacher. At last became a resident in New Orleans, where he was connected with the public schools. Was a Registrar in Bankruptcy, on the staff of Gov. Warmouth with rank of Colonel, and at the time of his death was Clerk of the Supreme Court of Louisiana. During the last two years of his life he was afflicted with a disease of his eyes, threatening total blindness, for which he visited Europe, but in vain. This severe trial, added to the seclusion and inactivity which it compelled, preyed upon his health, and eventuated in his death.

1859. HOWARD MALCOLM RANDLETT; b. Stratham, N. H., Feb. 20, 1837; d. Philadelphia, May, 1873, æt. 36. Studied medicine, graduating at Harvard in 1864. During the war was Assistant Surgeon 64th N. Y., and in 1864 was appointed Assistant Surgeon in U. S. N.; was on the Portsmouth station.

1859. NATHANIEL M'LELLAN WHITMORE; b. Richmond, Sept. 15, 1833; d. Gardiner, March 4, 1871, æt. 38. Read law with his uncle, Nathaniel M'L. Whitmore, Esq., of Gardiner, where he pursued the practice. Besides his activity in his profession, he was reported of as one of the most active and useful citizens. Had for the last two years of his life the sole management of the city schools. His death, after a short sickness with typhoid fever, was deeply felt by a large circle of relatives and by the community.

1860. JOHN FRANCIS APPLETON; b. Bangor, Aug. 29, 1838; d. Bangor, August, 1870, æt. 32. Studied law. At the opening of the late war enlisted in the service; was mustered in Nov., 1861, Captain 12th Me.; was ordered with his regiment to Louisiana; was complimented by his General for special services; was distinguished for gallantry in assault at Port Hudson; promoted Colonel in June, 1863; commanded a brigade, and was breveted Brigadier General. On his return from the army resumed his profession, but, falling a victim of pulmonary disease, died respected and esteemed by friends and the community.

1861. ALBION HOWE; b. Jacksonville, Florida, May 16, 1840;—son of Col. Marshall E. Howe, of the United States army;—was killed in a reconnoitering party by the Modocs, April 26, 1873, æt. 33. At first was employed in clerical labor in Alfred and in Boston; but in December, 1863, was mustered into the 14th N. Y. artillery as 2d Lieut.; served through the campaign from the "Wilderness" to before Petersburg; afterwards received a staff appointment, and rose to the rank of Major; at the close of the war had a position in the Custom House, Boston; in 1866 was commissioned 2d Lieut. in 4th artillery U. S. A., and in 1869 was promoted 1st Lieut.; meanwhile had been breveted Lieut. Col. volunteers and Captain in U. S. army, for gallantry during the war; was ordinance officer at Fortress Monroe, where he married a daughter of General Wm. F. Barry commanding; was assigned to duty in North Carolina in pursuit of the Kuklux "Lowry gang;" afterwards, to duty on the Pacific. He was a favorite, of decided personal courage, and of ability. He was the second graduate who has fallen in conflict with the Indians, the first being Lieut. Fred. H. Beecher, 1862.

1862. Eugene Putnam Morse; b. Bridgton, Dec. 16, 1839; d. Chicago, Dec. 31, 1871, æt. 32. Took charge of the academy at Bethel for a time. Studied law in Bridgton, was admitted to practice, and opened an office in Winthrop, and in a few months removed to Augusta. Subsequently removed to Chicago, where he had established a character that justified his being placed on the Chicago Relief Co. after the great fire. In the discharge of the duties of this position he took the small pox and fell its victim.

1862. George Edgar Brown; b. Hampden, Nov. 1, 1841; d. Washington, D. C., April 26, 1873, æt. 31. During his course in college he entered the army, being mustered in October, 1862, as Sergeant of 22d Me.: was promoted 1st Lieut. and served on the Mississippi. At Port Hudson he with Capt. Case (1848) volunteered with five men from the regiment on a storming party. At the close of the war held a position in the Patent Office two years. Studied law, and opened an office in Washington, where he was highly esteemed as an energetic, able and upright man. He died after ten days sickness from cerebro-spinal-meningitis.

1863. Henry Irving Jordan; b. Westbrook, Jan. 31, 1844; d. Stillwater, Minn., October, 1870, æt. 26. Studied medicine, graduating at New York College Phys. and Surg., 1867. Had just removed from Portland to establish a practice in Stillwater, when he was seized with the fever which proved fatal.

1864. Samuel Shannon Caswell; b. Stratford, N. H., March 5, 1840. Served during the war, and then returned to college and completed his course. Settled in Kansas, where while travelling on business he was murdered by Mexican banditti, Oct. 17, 1870, æt. 31.

1869. John Colby Cotton; b. Wolfboro', N. H., April 21, 1844; d. Ossipee, N. H., Dec. 24, 1872, æt. 28. He maintained a consistent christian character through his college life and purposed to enter the ministry; was about to engage in a theological course. He was teaching school when seized with fatal hemorrhage of the lungs.

NECROLOGY.

JULY, 1877—JULY, 1881.

1814 JOHN ABBOT DOUGLASS; b. Portland, February, 1792; nephew of Prof. John A., the first professor in the College. After teaching school in Portland three years, he pursued theological study with Rev. Mr. Edward Payson and his uncle, Rev. Dr. Abbot, Beverly, Mass.; was settled in the ministry at Waterford in 1821, where he was a faithful and respected servant of his Master nearly fifty-six years. He was of "marked individuality, of true natural independence of character, respectful to all and self-respectful also." Modest and discreet withal, systematic, stable and confided in, he exerted important influence on his people and the community. He was a member of the Trustee Board of Bridgton Academy forty-seven years, and its President twenty-seven.

In 1824 he married a daughter of Benjamin Abbot of Temple, and had ten children. Two sons and three daughters now survive.

1817 NATHAN CUMMINGS; b. Waterford, August, 1796. The family removed to Portland in his childhood, where his father became the prominent physician. He studied law with Stephen Longfellow, Esq., and began practice in Portland. For forty-six years he was a Director of Casco Bank; was an active politician; in 1840 was appointed Collector of the Port; was connected for a time with a commercial firm, but his later years, for the most part, were given to his home and friends. He was a member of the Maine Historical Society.

He married Emily, dau. of Hon. Isaac Ilsley, and had four children, three sons and a daughter. After suffering for some time from an attack of paralysis, he died July 15, 1878.

1817 JOSEPH GREEN MOODY; b. Kennebunk, November, 1797. He lived successively in Kennebunk, Augusta, Bangor, and in 1840 removed to Boston, where he engaged in mercantile business. In 1826 he married Elizabeth C. Currier, of Dover, N. H. A daughter and son survive. In 1834 he married Martha, dau. of Henry W. Fuller, Esq., of Augusta, and by this marriage had two daughters. His last years he resided in Cambridge, Mass., where he died May 31, 1879.

1818 RUFUS ANDERSON; b. N. Yarmouth, now Cumberland, August, 1796; son of Rev. Rufus A., then pastor of the church in that town, who subsequently removed to Wenham, Mass., whence the son, with his brother Isaac, came to College. Both were subjects of the religious interest of 1816 and '17. After graduation, Rufus went to Beverly in so infirm health that friends advised an India voyage. At Rio Janeiro, where the ship touched on the voyage, he found his condition so much improved that he resolved to proceed no farther. Returning to the United States, he entered the Seminary at Andover with a view to a foreign mission. While there he devised the Christian Almanac; prepared its first two issues of what has become the Family Christian Almanac. While a student, he assisted Mr. Evarts, Secretary of the A. B. C. F. M., and in 1823 was elected Assist. Cor. Sec. Soon after he published a memoir of Catherine Brown, which had a large circulation at home and abroad. In 1826 he was ordained, and two years later was sent by the Board on a special agency to the missions in the Mediterranean, the result of which appeared in "Observations upon the Peloponnesus and the Greek Islands." In 1832 he became Secretary of the Board for foreign correspondence. In 1843 he was commissioned to visit, with Rev. Dr. Hawes, of Hartford, Ct., the Missionaries in Greece, Turkey, Syria. In 1854, with Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Roxbury, he was deputed to visit missionary stations in India. More recently he has visited, for a like purpose, the Sandwich Islands. The value ascribed to the influence and labors of Dr. Anderson through more than a half century of service, the respect and affection cherished for him, and the confidence reposed in him as a man, as a christian brother, and in official relations, need only be alluded to. He left a name honored throughout the christian world. After retiring from active service of the Board, he gave courses of lectures at different theological Seminaries, on the work of missions, which were published in 1869, and published in a series of volumes a history of the missions of the Board. "The Memorial Volume," "The Hawaiian Islands," &c., had already been given to the public. Dr. A. was one of the founders of the Oriental Society, was influential in establishing the Mt. Holyoke Seminary, was on the Board of Trustees of Bradford Academy, and for some years its President. The degree of D. D. was conferred on him by Dartmouth in 1836, and LL. D. by this College in 1868.

In 1827 he married Eliza, dau. of Richard Hill, Esq., of Essex, Mass., and had seven children, of whom five are living. He had suffered bodily infirmity the last few years and died in the peace of the righteous in Boston, May 30, 1880.

1818 Moses Emery; b. Minot, July, 1794. He studied law with Judge Bailey, Wiscasset; was admitted to the Bar and became a partner with his teacher. In 1825 he removed to Saco, where he has since lived, devoting himself mainly to the profession. He wrote of himself, that "He had made it a rule never to encourage litigation, never to prosecute an unjust cause or to aid an unjust defence; although sometimes suffering in fees, he retained, what was better, a good conscience." He was of repute as an equity lawyer, and had a large practice; was interested in politics as a Whig, and then as a Republican; was an earnest advocate of the temperance movement; served on the School Committee many years; was in the State Legislature two terms, and was nominated for Congress, but failed of election.

In 1823 he married Sarah Cutts, dau. of Marshall Thornton, of Saco, and had seven children, of whom three sons are living, the youngest, B. C., 1863.

1818 Gideon Lane Soule; b. Freeport, July, 1796. He became an assistant of Dr. Benjamin Abbott, Exeter Academy, N. H., and then successively Instructor and Professor of Ancient Languages until 1838, when he succeeded Dr. Abbott as Principal. It required peculiar qualifications to fill the place of one so eminent, but he met the responsibility laid upon him. An admirable teacher and disciplinarian, he sustained the reputation of the Academy until 1878, when he resigned, and the event was commemorated by a large gathering of pupils and friends. His health gradually failed after active duty ceased, and he died suddenly May 28, 1879. A discriminating and just tribute to his memory was rendered by Rev. Dr. Morrison, of Dedham, Mass., in a discourse in the 2d Congregational Church, Exeter, soon after his decease. In 1856, Harvard College conferred on Mr. Soule the degree of LL.D.

Dr. S. married Elizabeth Emery, of Exeter, and had three sons, all now living.

1819 JOHN DENNIS MCCRATE; b. Wiscasset, October, 1802. After teaching school a year he studied law with Judge Bailey, Wiscasset, Joseph E. Smith, Esq., Boston, and Peleg Sprague, Esq., Hallowell. He engaged for some years in practice in Damariscotta, and represented the town in the Legislature; in 1835 was appointed Commissioner of Bankruptcy, and removed to Wiscasset, where he was Collector of the Customs. In 1845 he represented the District in Congress. In 1850 he removed to Massachusetts, and resided on a farm in Sutton.

In 1852 he married Susan M., d. of Jonas L. Sibley, formerly U. S. Marshal for Massachusetts. He died in Sutton, September, 1879.

1819 JAMES STACKPOLE; b. Waterville, November, 1798. He studied law, and, after practicing a year at Sebasticook Falls, returned to Waterville, where he ever after resided in his profession; was Town Treasurer five years, and served Waterville College in the same position seventeen years. He has represented the town in the Legislature.

He married Hannah Chase, of Fryeburg, but had no children. He died July 18, 1880.

1820 JACOB ABBOTT; b. Hallowell, November, 1803. He entered the Theological Seminary, Andover, Mass., but, before completing the course, was elected to the chair of Math. and Nat. Phil. in Amherst College, then just established; in a few years he removed to Boston and established the "Mt. Vernon School for Young Ladies." His novel and popular methods of teaching and management were set forth subsequently in "The Teacher," which had wide circulation. The success of his first adventure in authorship encouraged him to give up his school in the height of prosperity and to devote himself to literary labor. "The Young Christian" soon after appeared, was most favorably received at home and abroad, and was translated into other languages. "The Corner Stone," "The Way to Do Good," and other works of like character, soon followed. He then turned his attention to preparing books for the young, and the Rollo Jones and Lucy Books, the Franconia Series, Voyages and Travels of Marco Polo, &c., as they appeared, were greeted by young readers. Mr. A. lived a while in Roxbury, Mass.; then in Farmington, where a few acres gave him healthful exercise and recreation. He eventually removed to New York, where, with his brother John, he established what became "The Spingler Institute for Young Ladies," one of the best-known institutions of the kind in the city. He repeatedly visited Europe, collecting materials for works already referred to. In 1874 he received the degree of D. D. from Amherst College.

Mr. A. married twice: 1. Harriet, d. of Charles Vaughan, Esq., of Hallowell, who died leaving four sons, well known in professional life; 2. Mary Dana Woodbury, d. of Rev. Mr. Dana, of Marblehead. His last year or two were spent in Farmington. In the summer of 1879 he had a paralytic seizure, which terminated his life in October.

1821 JOSEPH HOWARD; b. Brownfield, March, 1800. He read law with Daniel Goodenow, Esq., Alfred, and Judge Dana, of Fryeburg, and practiced some years in York County, of which he was District Attorney. In 1837, having been appointed U. S. Attorney for Maine, he removed to Portland, where he spent the remainder of his life. In 1848 he was appointed to the Bench of the Supreme Court. At the end of his seven years of service, he returned to the Bar and to an extensive practice.

In 1860 he was elected Mayor of Portland; in 1864 was the Democratic candidate for Governor; was for several years President of the Cumberland Bar, and also on the Board of Overseers of the College. He was of gentle and genial temper, modest and retiring, of pure and high-toned character, of strong religious sentiment, and for some years a communicant in the Episcopal Church.

In 1826 he married Maria Annette, d. of Hon. Judah Dana, and had two sons, graduates of the College—1852, 1857, and two daughters. He was visiting Brownfield, the home of his youth; had gone out to walk, and was found dead by the roadside, from disease of the heart, December, 1877.

1823 WILLIAM GEORGE CROSBY; b. Belfast, September, 1805. He pursued legal study with his father, Hon. Judge C.; and opened an office in Boston; but soon returned to Belfast, where he resided most of his life. He formed a partnership in law with H. O. Alden, Esq., which continued nearly twenty years. He was a Whig in politics, was a candidate for Congress, but failed of election, and declined a second nomination; was a delegate to the convention of 1844, which nominated Mr. Clay for the Presidency; was chosen Secretary of the State Board of Education when first established, and discharged with general acceptance the duties of the office three years; was Governor of Maine two terms; was delegate to the National Union Convention, Philadelphia, 1866, and was appointed Collector of Customs for his District. For a few years after his service as Governor, he engaged in literary pursuits, in connection with Mr. Littel, Boston, ("Littel's Living Age,") but in 1859 resumed his profession in Belfast until 1870, distinguished as an advocate at the Bar, and universally respected for probity, courtesy and liberal culture; was prominent in measures for the interests of education and the general welfare; was for some years a member of the Unitarian Church. He received the degree of LL. D. from the College in 1870, and was on its Board of Overseers; was for thirty years a member of Maine Historical Society.

In 1831 he married Ann M., d. of Capt. Robert Patterson, Belfast. Of his children, six survived infancy and four are now living. Mr. C. died in Belfast March 21, 1881.

1824 WILLIAM HENRY CODMAN; b. Portland, September, 1806. He read law with Charles S. Daveis, Esq., began the practice in Portland, and in 1840 removed to Camden, which became his permanent residence. He was District Attorney for some years. He was appointed by President Pierce to a clerkship in the Treasury, which he held eight or nine years.

He married a daughter of John Eager, Esq., Camden, and had eight children, of whom two only, a son and daughter, survive. Mr. C., in consequence of a paralytic affection, relinquished active business the last years of his life. He was found dead in his bed May 3, 1879.

1824 WILLIAM MASON; b. Castine, May, 1805; son of Rev. William Mason. He pursued medical studies under Dr. Stevens, of Castine, and Dr. Gay, of Boston, and established himself in practice in Bucksport, where he remained several years. He then removed to Charlestown, Mass., and became one of its most respected and beloved physicians.

In 1837 he married Sarah P. Bradley, Bucksport, and had children. He was a member of Massachusetts Medical Society and of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He died of pneumonia, March 18, 1881.

1824 THEODORE LYMAN MOODY; b. Kennebunk, June, 1804. He engaged in a business life successively in New York, Charleston, S. C., and Mobile, Ala. The financial crisis of 1837 proving unfavorable, he returned North. He held for several years a clerkship in the Treasury, Washington.

In 1838 he married Miss Hellen, of Washington, and had a son and daughter. He died in Washington, February 19, 1878.

1825 WILLIAM STONE; b. Livermore, March, 1804. He read law in the office of Peleg Sprague, Esq., Hallowell; was admitted to the Bar, practiced a few years in Livermore, then removed to Mississippi and settled in Homesville, Pike County. He was in public life several years, was in both Houses of the Legislature, was appointed Judge of the Circuit Court. He subsequently lived in Natchez and Monticello, and at last in Hazlehurst, Copish County, where he was made Judge of the "Cotton Court." He died there November, 1877. It was his great disappointment that he could not be with his class at their fiftieth anniversary of graduation.

1826 CHARLES AUSTIN LORD; b. Kennebunkport, May 11, 1806. His health not allowing him to study a profession, he engaged in the business of book selling and publishing in the firm of Lord, Leavitt & Co., New York. He subsequently spent some years in Missouri as Principal of a High School, Professor of Languages in Marion College, and as Head of the classical department of a High School in St. Louis. He was also editor of a temperance newspaper for some time. In 1849 he returned to Maine, and was an associate of Dr. Asa Cummings in the Christian Mirror, of which he became sole proprietor until 1874. He held, by appointment of Gov. Crosby, the office of State Superintendent of Common Schools. From early life a Christian man, he cherished an interest in whatever concerns the welfare of men; was an officer of the Williston Church from its beginning, and several years on the Overseer Board of the College.

In 1831 he married Ernestine Libby, of Scarboro', and had six children, daughters. He died August 7, 1878.

1827 JOHN STEVENS ABBOTT; b. Temple, January, 1807. He had charge of the Academy in China for nearly three years, meanwhile reading law, and completed his legal study under Mr. Belcher, Farmington, and Stephen Longfellow, Esq., Portland; opened an office in Union, but soon removed to Thomaston, where he secured an extensive practice. He subsequently removed to Norridgewock, and in 1860 to Boston, where he was in active practice twenty years. He was Attorney General, and represented his town in the Legislature, of Maine. He gained reputation, especially in argument on legal questions before the Courts. He was for several years a member of the Congregational Church in Watertown.

In 1835 he married Elizabeth, d. of William Allen, Esq., of Norridgewock, and left at his death, which occurred suddenly at his residence in Watertown, June 12, 1881, four sons and four daughters. His son William A., (B. C. 1858,) is now a practicing attorney in New York.

1827 JOSEPH ADAMS; b. West Newbury, Mass., July, 1803. He studied law in Hallowell, practiced for a time in Pittston; removed to Gardiner in 1840, where he was Cashier of the Gardiner Bank and Treasurer of the Savings Bank several years. In 1853 he became Cashier of the Cobbossee County Bank, and held the position the remainder of his life. He suffered much from ill-health, and died April, 1879.

In 1832 he married Catherine, d. of Maj. Edward Swan, of Gardiner, and had four sons and three daughters. Three of his sons were Cashiers of banks, and died a short time before their father.

1827 JOHN CODMAN; b. Salem, Mass., January, 1808. He entered college from Portland. He studied law in the offices of Leverett Salstonstal and Rufus Choate, Esqs., Salem, and in the Harvard Law School, and settled in practice in Boston, where he ever after resided. He was Master in Chancery, and was repeatedly in the Massachusetts Legislature. As an indication of his scholarly habits, he was a member of the Examining Committee at Harvard in Greek, and Chairman of the Committee of the Boston Latin School.

In 1855 he married Isabella, d. of Hon. Samuel D. Parker, Boston, and had one child.

1827 JOHN HEDDLE HILLIARD; b. Gorham, January, 1808; brother of William T. of the preceding class. He studied law with Judge Pierce (1818), of Gorham, and David Hayes, Esq., (1819), Saccarappa, and settled in the profession in Orono, whence he subsequently removed to Oldtown, where he ever after lived. He was County Attorney, and was "of legal mind and a good lawyer." His last years were burdened with infirmity and suffering, confining him to his house.

He married a daughter of his teacher, Mr. Hayes, and had two sons and two daughters. He died November, 1880.

1827 JAMES HIGGINSON TYNG; b. Boston, May, 1807. Son of David Atkins Tyng, Esq. He studied theology with Bishops Brownwell and Griswold. He exercised the ministry of the Gospel in several places, "in churches," as himself reported, "very old or very new alike, and equally poor," for most of the time in Pennsylvania, Florida, Virginia and New Jersey, mission work, with which he at times connected that of teaching.

In 1839 he married Mahlon Degen, and had ten children, of whom three only were living when my authority was written. He died in Brooklyn, N. Y., April 6, 1879.

1828 JOHN CALL BARTLETT; b. Charlestown, Mass., October, 1808. He studied medicine with Drs. Townsend and Stedman, U. S. Marine Hospital, Chelsea, Mass., and Dr. Thompson, Charlestown, Mass.; grad. M. D. Harv. 1831, and settled in Chelmsford, Mass., which became his permanent residence, where he gained reputation as a physician and citizen. He showed public spirit by contributing liberally to the religious society with which he was connected. In his later years he retired from active practice of his profession, and gratified agricultural and horticultural tastes; was Pres. of the Middlesex Unitarian Conference, Trustee of Westford Academy, and of the Lowell Savings Bank.

In 1834 he married Maria J., d. of Joel Adams, Esq., of Chelmsford. He had taken lodgings with his wife in Boston for the winter, where he was seized with a paralytic attack, which in a few weeks terminated in his death, January, 1878. He left three sons.

1828 EDWARD FRANCIS CUTTER; b. Portland, January, 1810; brother of William (1821). He pursued theological study at Andover, graduating in 1831, and in 1832 was ordained over the Congregational Church, Warren, where he remained 13 years. In 1846 he was installed over the church in Belfast, and, after nine or ten years' service, succeeded Rev. Dr. Cummings as editor of the Christian Mirror, Portland. In 1857 he removed to Bardstown, Ill., and was two years acting pastor of the Congregational Church there. Returning to Belfast, his health permitted only occasional preaching. In 1863 he removed to Rockland, where, until 1872, he was acting pastor, when a bronchial affection compelled him to retire from active duty. He then became resident in Belfast. In 1846 he published "Pastoral Conversations." In 1871 he received from the College the degree of D. D., and was a member of the Board of Overseers several years.

He married Mary E. McLellan, of Warren, and had a son and three daughters. He had spent a few months with his wife and a daughter in Florida, on his return was siezed with malarial fever, and died in Charleston, S. C., March, 1880.

1829 Dudley Perkins Bailey; b. Yarmouth, April, 1805. He was Principal of Hampden and Hebron Academies for two or three years, and then entered the ministry in the Baptist Church in Greene, Wayne and other towns in the State. He was on the School Committee where he was settled. He was twice married, and had children. He suffered much from infirm health and depressed circumstances, but secured the love, confidence and respect of all who knew him. He died in Hebron, December, 1878.

1829 Allen Haines; b. Leeds, July 27, 1804. He studied law and was admitted to the Bar in Bangor, where he pursued his profession until 1845, when he removed to Portland. Retiring from the law, he turned his attention to other pursuits, became a Director of Atlantic Bank, and subsequently President of the Mechanic's and Second National Banks; was President of the Portland Horse R. R. Co., of the Androscoggin R. R. and York & Cumberland R. R., and a Director in the Portland & Rutland R. R. He was on the School Committee of Portland, was prominent in the Masonic fraternity and active in the Democratic party.

In 1874 he removed to Pittsburg, Pa., where he died January, 1878. He married Jane R. Purinton, of Portland, and left a son and daughter.

1830 Ezra Abbot; b. Wilton, N. H., November, 1805. He taught school in Augusta, where he began theological study with Rev. Dr. B. Tappan, and continued the study in the theological school of Yale College. He went to Virginia, Farquar Co., where he engaged in teaching, and, becoming interested in the work, purchased a farm, took pupils into his family, and remained twenty years. In 1846 he married Sarah Hacker, of New York, had a son and daughter, and preferring to rear his children in a free State, with foresight of the approaching conflict between slavery and freedom, sold his lands, returned to New England, and for a year taught a school in Rocky Hill, Ct., then in Batavia, Ill., and subsequently removed to Minnesota. With a brother he established himself in Owatonna, bought a tract of land, set on foot improvements with energy and forethought, and in a few years the wilderness became a city. After a long and painful illness, he died August, 1876.

1830 Darius Adams; b. Gilead, April, 1805. He was the first College graduate from that mountain region. The story of his struggles and his brother's of the next class are of great interest. He taught schools, on leaving College, in Brunswick, Guildhall, Vt., and Gilmanton, N. H., in the last place reading law. He removed to Illinois, was admitted to the Bar in that State, but relinquished the practice for more active and enterprising life, and "devoted himself to the care of his property and the improvement of the place of his adoption., Rockton, of which he was one of the original settlers," a man of capacity, energy and worth. He never married, and lived for several years with another emigrant brother. He represented his town in the Legislature. He died November 5, 1880.

1830 John Harris Converse; b. Durham, December, 1808. He read law with Josiah Mitchell, Esq., Freeport, Messrs. Wing & Noble of Munroe, Mich., and Joseph Williamson, Esq. of Belfast; was admitted to the Bar in 1835, opened an office in Nobleboro, and in 1853 removed to Newcastle, across the river, where he ever after lived, securing an extensive practice. He held the position of Deputy Collector of Customs, by appointment of President Pierce, and for some years was Judge of Probate for the County.

He married Mary A. Connor, of Belfast, and had two sons. He died June, 1880.

1831 Aurelius Langdon Weymouth; b. Newcastle, September, 1805. He studied medicine, graduated M. D. in the Medical School of the College, and settled in the practice of dentistry in Boston, where he resided until a few months before his death, which occurred, after a long illness, in Medford, Mass. He was a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society. He married, and a son grad. M. D. Harv. 1860.

1832 CHARLES EDWARDS ABBOT; b. Brunswick, December, 1811; brother of Jacob (1820), J. S. C. (1825) and Gorham (1826). He pursued theological study at Andover, Mass., graduating in 1837, but was never ordained. With the tastes and peculiar qualifications of his brothers, he devoted himself to teaching. After a year or two thus spent in Boston, when his brothers opened the "Abbot Institute for Young Ladies" in New York, he assisted them for a time, and then opened a boarding school for lads in Norwich, Ct., which he conducted with success ten years. Induced to remove to Pittsfield, Mass., he was prospered in the enterprise, but the question of health led him to remove to Hartford, Ct., where he opened an English and classical school for boys, which was well sustained until an enfeebled constitution and disease of the brain compelled him to relinquish a work he loved so well. He died in Hartford, July, 1880.

He married Elizabeth Spaulding, d. of Rev. Dr. Spaulding, of the Ceylon Mission, whom his brother, John S. C., had adopted. They had four children, three sons and a daughter.

1832 JOHN JOHNSTON; b. Bristol, August, 1806. After teaching two years, he became Principal of the Oneida Conference Seminary, Cazenovia, N. Y., then Prof. of Math. and Lecturer on Natural Science in the infancy of Wesleyan University, Middletown, Ct., and, four years later, Prof. of Nat. Science, holding that position until 1869. He published text books on chemistry and natural philosophy, the former used for a time in our own classes; also an elaborate and extended history of his native town and Bremen, and papers on mineralogical and physical topics in earlier volumes of the Am. Journal of Science and Arts. His name is identified, probably more than any other, with the life of the Institution with which he was so long connected. In 1850 he received the degree of LL. D. from McKendree College, Ill.; was a member of several historical societies and scientific bodies.

In 1835 he married, in Cazenovia, N. Maria Hamilton. They have had five sons, three now living. Advancing years, with infirmity, compelled retirement from active duty the last few years of his life. The winter of 1876–7 he spent in Bermuda. He and his wife lived during his last two years with a son in Clifton, Staten Island, N. Y., where he died, December, 1879.

1833 JOHN MORLAND CUMMINGS; b. Portland, March, 1814; brother of Nathan (1817). He studied medicine, graduated M. D. in the Medical School of the College, began practice in Portland, and was city physician for a time. For several of his last years he lived on Richmond Island, near Portland, which was his property, where he died March, 1878.

1833 ISAAC PALMER; b. Fayette, September, 1807. He was a successful teacher, meanwhile pursuing medical study, and completed his course at the Berkshire Medical Institution, Pittsfield, Mass., where he graduated in 1837. He entered on the practice of medicine in Augusta, but soon removed to North Anson, which has since been his residence. At an early period of his professional life he visited Europe for study and observation. He had just completed his forty-third year of successful practice when he died, February 28, 1880, greatly respected as a physician, a Christian man and citizen. In 1873 he was elected to the Senate of the State, and served two terms.

He married a daughter of Gen. Alden Blossom of Turner, and had two sons and two daughters, the sons graduating in 1861.

1833 Edwin Seabury; b. Yarmouth, December, 1812. Fond of music and a good singer, he was prominent in the College choir. He graduated from Bangor Theol. Sem., and received a license to preach from the Penobscot Association in 1837. After a year or two spent in teaching, he was ordained over the Congregational Church, Newcastle, where he remained seven or eight years. He supplied the pulpit in Byfield, Mass., a year, and five years the church in Lanesville, a suburb of Gloucester, Mass. He subsequently ministered to churches in Vermont and Massachusetts. He is reported to have had an agreeable manner and style, and to have repeatedly had proofs of the divine favor in his work.

He married Elizabeth Nason, of Yarmouth, who died in 1874, leaving four children, one having died in infancy. He died in Walpole, N. H., June, 1879.

1834 Theodore Herman Jewett; b. South Berwick, March, 1815. He studied medicine with Dr. Wm. Perry, Exeter, N. H., grad. M. D. Jefferson Med. Coll., Phil.; settled in S. Berwick, where he has since lived, with extensive practice in that and neighboring towns, and with high reputation. He was for three years Professor of Obstetrics in the Med. Sch. of the College. He died very suddenly at the Crawford House, White Mts., Sept., 1878. He had premonitions of fatal disease of the heart for a year or two. He was a member of the Congregational Church, and prominent in whatever tended to the welfare of church and society and of the community; was President of the Maine Medical Association, and delivered the annual address before that body, June, 1878, which gave evidence of broad views of the scope, and of his earnestness, intelligence, conscientiousness and ability in the walks, of the profession. He was a member of Maine Historical Society.

He married Caroline F., d. of his teacher, Dr. Perry, and had three children, daughters, one of them of repute as an authoress.

1836 Daniel Dole; b. Bloomfield, now Skowhegan, September, 1808. After graduating at Bangor Theological Seminary in 1839, he received ordination, and, under appointment of A. B. C. F. M., embarked for the Sandwich Islands, where he arrived early in 1841. He became Principal of the Punahou School, and when that became Oahu College was appointed its President, holding that position until 1855. He then removed to Koloa, Hawaii, continuing his work as a teacher, in which he was highly successful. Addicted to classical study, he prepared students for the colleges of his native land, and his pupils in other lands bear him in grateful remembrance. He enjoyed, in an eminent degree, the confidence and affection of his associates in the mission and the respect of the public. He revisited his early home a few years since, and was greeted at the Commencement of the College.

He married twice: 1. Emily H. Ballard, of Gardiner, who died, leaving two sons; 2. Mrs. Charlotte Knapp, of Stamford, Ct., who died in 1874.

1836 Ephraim Wilder Farley; b. Newcastle, August, 1817. He read law with his relative, William J. Farley, Esq., of Thomaston, and, after practicing a few years there, removed to Newcastle which was henceforward his residence. His tastes and independent means led him more into political than professional life, in which he was prominent and influential. He was a Whig in politics, and on the dissolution of the party, his strong conservatism declining sympathy with the new party, he favored the Democracy. He twice represented his town in the House, and his District in the Senate of the State; was a member of the House in the Thirty-third Congress, of the National Whig Convention which nominated Gen. Taylor for the Presidency, and of the National Democratic Convention of 1860. He cultivated literary tastes; was President of the Trustees of Lincoln Academy several years. Our college library bears evidence of his interest on its shelves and in a venerable chair of English oak, his gift, brought from England in 1635, from which the commencement degrees are conferred.

Mr. F. never married. Occupying until his last days the paternal mansion, he showed generous hospitality to kindred and friends. His genial disposition, intelligence, independent spirit and spotless integrity won friendship, affection and respect. He died very suddenly April, 1880.

1836 LEONARD HAWES; b. Weld, December, 1808. He entered the Seminary, Andover, Mass., but his mind became unsettled and incapacitated him for professional life. He returned to his home, but never regained healthy action, and the promise of usefulness which he gave in college was irretrievably blasted. He died in 1877.

1836 JABEZ HOWARD WOODMAN; b. New Gloucester, April, 1815. Constitutional infirmity hindered his fulfilling the promise of college life. For twenty years he taught school much of the time in different places. In 1878 he removed to Boston, where he died suddenly from disease of the heart March, 1881. He served on school committees. In later years, while doing something in the cultivation of a small farm, he gave some desultory attention to classical and Oriental languages and literature, but failed to utilize any acquirements he made.

In 1854 he married Rosetta Crowell, and had three children.

1837 WILLIAM WARREN; b. Waterford, October, 1806. Infirm health compelled him to leave college before graduating. He pursued theological study at Andover Seminary, graduating in 1838. His standing subsequently justified the action of the Boards in allowing his name to be inserted in his class and in conferring, in 1870, on him the degree of D. D. In the fall of 1839 he took charge of a High School in Windham, meanwhile preaching as occasion offered. The year following he was ordained pastor of the Congregational Church in that town and remained nine years, each autumn teaching the same school with marked success. He then became pastor of the Congregational Church, Upton, Mass., and, after seven years of faithful service, he was employed for a while in the service of the American Colonization Society. In 1867 he was appointed District Secretary for Northern New England of the A. B. C. F. M., and held the position until advancing years and enfeebled health compelled resignation in 1878, with a record of unwearied, faithful and efficient service. In the spring of 1878 he had an attack of pneumonia, which aggravated the pulmonary tendency to which he had always been subject, and he died January, 1879. His quick discernment and acute discrimination of character were shown in sketches of his contemporaries communicated to the public press. He published "Household Consecration," "The Spirit's Sword," "Twelve years among the Children," "These for Those."

Dr. W. married Mary Hubbard Lamson, of Beverly, Mass., and had six children, of whom two sons and a daughter are now living.

1838 THOMAS GLIDDEN KIMBALL; b. Monmouth, September, 1811. He had charge of the Waterville Institute nearly three years, and of Hallowell Academy one year. Infirm health led him to abandon teaching and the study of a profession for more active pursuits. He engaged in commercial business in Waterville, which, proving successful, he pursued until 1876; was a Director of Waterville Bank from its opening. He died December, 1879.

In 1842 he married Hannah Redington Esty, d. of of his business partner, and had three sons and a daughter, the youngest son being now a member of our College.

1838 Stephen Mountfort Vail; b. Union-Vale, N. Y., January, 1818. On leaving College he became for a year a teacher in the Amenia Seminary, N. Y., studied theology in Union Theol. Sem'y, N. Y., graduating in 1842, and entered on his work in the Methodist ministry at Fishkill, N. Y., Sharon, Ct., and in Pine Plains, N. Y. He then became Principal of New Jersey Conference Seminary, Pennington; in 1849 was elected Prof. Bib. and Oriental Lit. in the Biblical Institute, Concord, N. H., where he remained twenty years. Failing health compelling resignation, and in 1869 being appointed United States Consul for Rhenish Bavaria, he held the position four or five years, and then, after travel in Egypt and Palestine, he returned and became resident on Staten Island, N. Y., at Giffords, Southfield, as pastor of the Methodist Church, and as Professor of Hebrew in the school of language held in the summer months at Chatauqua on the lake of that name, N. Y. In 1856 he received the degree of D. D. from Genessee College, now Syracuse University, N. Y. A diligent student, he published volumes and discourses, contributed to periodicals, and had in hand works awaiting the press.

In 1842 he married Louisa R. Cushman, New Gloucester, and had nine children, three sons and three daughters, now living. He died March, 1881.

1839 John Walton Davis; b. Wellfleet, Mass., January, 1817. He taught the Gardiner Lyceum some months, and then engaged in legal studies with Joseph A. Wood, Esq. (1821), Ellsworth, and was admitted to the Bar of Hancock County. He opened an office in Topsham, but in a few years removed to Wellfleet, where he practiced law twenty years. In 1869 he removed to Provincetown, where he died June, 1880. He held civil offices in Wellfleet and the County, and in the Revenue of the United States.

In 1862 he married Larua T., d. of the late Hon. Benjamin Orr, of Brunswick, and had two sons and four daughters, two of the daughters now living.

1839 Edward Payson Weston; b. Boothbay, January, 1819. During the first year after graduation he published "Bowdoin Poets." The year following he took charge of "Lewiston Falls Academy," and remained seven years in successful labor; in 1847 became Principal of Gorham Academy, which subsequently became "The Maine Female Seminary." After thirteen years' service he was appointed "State Superintendent of Schools," was re-appointed, was active in introducing the Normal School system and opened the first of the kind in the State in Farmington, which prospered under his care. Resigning this office in 1865, he accepted the charge of the Abbott Family School for boys in the same town. In 1869 he was invited to a new seminary for young ladies, Lake Forest, Ill., which he conducted successfully seven years. In 1876 he opened a school for young ladies at Highland Park, near Chicago. He represented Gorham in the Legislature one term. He contributed to the public press and edited "The Maine Teacher."

Mr. W. married twice: 1. A daughter of J. Burbank, Esq., of Bethel, who died in 1868, leaving a son and two daughters. 2. A daughter of Rev. John Butler, of Yarmouth. He died at Highland Park, of pneumonia, October, 1879. His son Edward B. graduated B. C. 1870.

1840 Silas Morton; b. Hebron, October, 1818. After teaching two years he entered on a theological course at Bangor, graduating in 1845. He was licensed to preach, and attempted the service "to the grateful acceptance of his hearers," but self-distrust and extreme conscientiousness hindered, and he resumed the work of teaching for some years at Thomaston, Windham and other places. In 1851 he settled on a farm in Otisfield, amidst his farm labor cherishing love for books; was for several years on the Superintending School Committee, besides holding other town offices; was a deacon in the Congregational Church. His death was sudden and painful; he fell from a mowing machine, was caught by the scythe and survived but a few hours, dying in the peace of the believer, July 16, 1879.

He married, in 1851, Sarah Webb, of Casco, and had a child, who died in infancy.

1841 JOSEPH FARWELL CLARK; b. Andover, Mass., January, 1820. He read law with his father, Herbert Clark, Esq., attended the law school at Harvard, and practiced some years in Lawrence, and then in Boston. His residence in his last years was in Cambridge where he died March, 1879.

He married Lydia Hodges, and had three sons and a daughter.

1842 JAMES LEWIS NUTTING; b. Otisfield, June, 1818. He studied law two years in the office of Messrs. Howard & Shepley, Portland. In 1845 he went to Pennsylvania, and, after teaching for a time, engaged in coal mining and the manufacture of iron; more recently has been largely interested in agriculture with success and reputation, his residence being Pine Grove, Schuylkill Co. In 1876 he was nominated for Congress by the Republicans, but in the returns was "counted out." He contested for his seat, his claim was favorably reported upon, but so late in the session that it was not acted upon.

Mr. N. married Anna B. Graeff. His wife and two children have died, and he himself died June, 1880, leaving a daughter.

1842 CHARLES PACKARD; b. Minot, October 14, 1818. He entered the Theological Seminary, Bangor, and graduated in 1845; was ordained over the Congregational Church and society, Norway, in the spring of 1846; was installed over the church in Harrison, whence, after three years' service, the health of his wife requiring change of climate, he removed to Atlanta, Georgia, where he taught an academy a year. He then returned to Maine; was settled over the church in New Gloucester, where he remained five or six years. He subsequently was pastor over churches in Maine and New Hampshire, and at last over the Presbyterian Church in Windham, N. H. He published a manual of the church in Alstead, and in 1876 a centennial sermon preached in Windham. He has served on School Committees, as Supervisor of Schools and as Trustee of different academies.

Mr. P. married, in 1845, Hannah F., d. of Uriah Holt of Norway, and had five children, two of whom died in early childhood. A son and two daughters are living. Mr. P., after a short illness, died in Windham February 20, 1881.

1843 WILLIAM JAY BRADBURY; b. New Gloucester, November, 1821. All we have learned concerning him is, that in 1849 he emigrated to California, and in the year following to Milwaukee, Oregon, where he lived more than twenty years engaged for the most part in manufacturing flour. His last few years were spent in San Francisco, where he died November, 1876.

1843 WILLIAM STONE CHADWELL; b. Gardiner, October, 1821. He taught schools in Gardiner, Ellsworth and Saco with reputation. After a course of theological study, he was admitted to deacon's orders in the Episcopal Church, and then to the priesthood. His first parochial charge was in Brunswick. In 1857 he removed to Eastport, where he established a church and, after two years' service, resigned. Called to St. Luke's, Catskill, N. Y., he remained there nine years, and then, in the hope of recruiting strength, accepted the office of Associate Secretary, Board of Domestic Missions, N. Y., and in a year or two resumed the pastorate, Williamsburg, L. I., where he continued until he retired from labor in consequence of prolonged and complicated disease, attended with severe suffering, which terminated in death at Poland Springs, July, 1877. It was Bishop Littlejohn's testimony, that he ranked among the most useful and influential of the clergy.

He married a daughter of Mr. Simon Bradstreet of Gardiner, and left a son and daughter. The son is now Assist. Minister, Holy Trinity Ch., Brooklyn, N. Y.

1843 FRANCIS LORING TALBOT; b. Machias, February, 1824. He entered at once upon the business of lumbering in Machias. He represented the town in the Legislature, and his district in the Senate, and was a member of the Board of Overseers of the College at the time of his death.

He married Mary C., d. of Nathaniel Badger, Brunswick, and had three children. He had suffered from the effects of severe illness for two years, and died suddenly November 10, 1880, leaving a memory honored by the community.

1845 WILLIAM LORING AVERY; b. Belfast, October, 1824. He read law but did not engage in the practice. He published and edited "The State Signal," a weekly; 1854 and '55 was editor of the Troy, N. Y., Daily Times; was afterwards connected with other N. Y. papers; for some years held a position in the "Department of the Interior," Washington. The last two years of his life were spent in Mechanicsville, Pa., as editor of a newspaper. He died suddenly of pneumonia, March, 1879.

He married Mrs. Susan S. Anderson, of Peoria, Ill., who, with a son, survives.

1845 MOSES MORRILL BUTLER; b. Sanford, March, 1824. He taught a High School in Springvale, a village of Sanford, and then studied law in the office of Edward E. Bourne, Esq. (1816), of Kennebunk, completing his course with Samuel Wells, Esq., Portland, was admitted to the Bar and opened an office in Portland. He formed, successively, partnerships with William P. Fessenden, Esq., and his sons James D. and Francis Fessenden, and lastly with Charles F. Libby, Esq. In consequence of ill-health, he travelled abroad. He represented the city in the Legislature twice, was Attorney for the County, and was twice Mayor of the city.

In 1850 he married Olive M., d. of John Storer, of Sanford and had three children. A son and daughter survive. While trying a cause, he was seized with paralysis which terminated in death October 1879. He was of marked ability and honored as a useful and devoted citizen.

1845 FRANCIS PICKARD HALE; b. Rowley, Mass., September, 1819. On leaving college he went to Girardtown, Va., where he taught two years. Returning to Massachusetts, he became Solicitor of Patents, Boston. He died suddenly while on a visit to his early home, September, 1877.

He married Ann Stickney, Rowley, and had a son and daughter.

1845 JOHN PARKER SKEELE; b. Kennebunkport, October, 1821. After two years of teaching he entered the Theological Seminary, Bangor, graduated 1850, and was ordained over the Congregational Church, Hallowell. After a faithful and acceptable service of six years, failing health compelled his resigning that pastorate. He was settled the following year in Wilbraham, Mass., where he remained seven years. He was employed in an agency in behalf of the A. B. C. F. M. until 1870, when he resumed the pastorate over the church, Hatfield, Mass. His last settlement was in E. Bloomfield, N. Y. In April, 1881, he was siezed with pneumonia, which, after a brief illness, proved fatal.

He married Elizabeth, d. of deacon Blodgett, of Bucksport, and had four sons, three now living.

1846 Charles Stetson Crosby; b. Hampden, October, 1824. He read law, was admitted to the Penobscot Bar, and settled in Bangor, where he had secured a lucrative practice and high promise in the profession, and was County Attorney. Early in the war of the rebellion he entered the military service and continued in it to the close. He resumed the law in Manchester, Iowa. He died suddenly, January, 1881.

He married Eveline Owen, Brunswick, but had no children.

1846 William Francis Jackson; b. Brunswick, November, 1824. He studied medicine, graduating in Jefferson Med. Coll. Phil. 1849, and settled in Gardiner. In 1853, having adopted the system of homœopathy, he removed to Roxbury, Mass., where he is reputed to have gained extensive practice and to have won respect and esteem. Although somewhat abrupt in his bearing, he was "kind, tender-hearted and generous," ever responding to calls for sympathy and relief. An attack of paralysis of several months, the effect of overwork, caused his death April, 1879.

In 1850 he married Abby C. West and left three sons.

1846 Jairus Ware Perry; b. Sweden, December, 1821. He read law with N. H. Hazen, Esq., Andover, Mass., was admitted to the Bar, began the practice in that town, but soon removed to Salem, where he continued in active practice until the failure of health disabled him from intellectual effort. He was partner with William Endicott, Esq., and subsequently with Mr. Tuckerman; was a member of the City Council some years, was devoted to the profession, and won respect for integrity and ability. He published a "Treatise on the Law of Trusts," which gave him reputation. Late in 1876 symptoms of disease of the brain induced him to seek health in European travel. He was stricken with paralysis in Rome, but was able to return home. A renewal of the attack terminated in death, August, 1877. He left a son (B. C. 1877) and a daughter. He was a member of the Board of Overseers of the College, and in 1875 received its degree of LL. D.

1846 Leonard Downes Shepley; b. Saco, April, 1826; brother of John R. (1837). He studied law for a time, but never entered upon the practice. He engaged in mercantile pursuits until 1867, when, on the formation of the Portland Water Company, he became its Treasurer and held that position at the time of his death, which occurred very suddenly from apoplexy December, 1878. He left a wife and three children.

1846 Benjamin Galen Snow; b. Brewer, October, 1818. He pursued theological study at Bangor, graduating in 1849. After supplying churches in the lower part of the State, he offered himself to the A. B. C. F. M., and was appointed to a new mission in Micronesia. In November, 1851, he sailed with his wife, Lydia Vose Buck of Robbinston, for his station and landed October, 1852, on Strong's Island, in the native tongue, Kusaie. He proved himself a wise, faithful and persistent servant of the Board. Apart from strictly pastoral work, he reduced the language into written form and issued primers, readers and spelling books, the Gospels, Acts and some of the Epistles, hymn books, &c.; subsequently did the same for the Marshall Islands, and had on hand other versions when he had a paralytic seizure, which compelled return to the United States and to his early home in 1877. He died in Brewer, May, 1880, leaving a wife and a daughter and a son born in Kusaie.

1847 GEORGE JARVIS MEANS; b. Augusta, March, 1827. He graduated at the Theological Seminary, Andover, in 1853, went to Tennessee, was in the service of the American Sunday School Union three years, and two years in Rochester, N. Y.; was acting pastor a year in Perry Centre, N. Y., where, in 1859, he was ordained over the church in that place and remained four years. He became pastor for thirteen years over a church in Howels, N. Y., when infirm health compelled him to retire from labor. A victim of disease of the heart and paralysis, he returned to Augusta, where he died May, 1879.

In 1859 he married Ellen Sophia, d. of William Goodrich of Rocky Hill, Ct. They had a son, now in the college, and three daughters.

1850 GEORGE PEABODY GOODWIN; b. Baldwin, April 22, 1825; brother of John M. (1845). He spent three or four years in teaching the High School, Augusta, and as private tutor in Woodville, Mi. He then read law in Chicago, was admitted to the Bar and settled in the practice in that city, where he remained until, on the death of his classmate and friend, Atherton in Dixon, Ill. in 1859, he removed to that place and formed a co-partnership with the surviving partner. Accepting the offer of Land Commissioner of Chicago & N. W. R. R., he became resident in Evanston near Chicago. During the last years of his life he suffered from harassing and incurable disease, which terminated in his death June 12, 1878. He was reputed to have been "a skillful, conscientious, incorruptible servant, bringing to the discharge of his duties a well-cultivated mind and an exhaustive knowledge of the law."

He married the widow of his friend Atherton, Lucia, d. of Hon. Hezekiah Williams, of Castine, and had four children, all dying before their father.

1852 DANA BOARDMAN PUTNAM; b. Rumford September, 1826. After teaching a High School in Ipswich, Mass. a short time, he went South, and was for a year Professor of Languages in the South Military Academy, Fredonia, Ala. He studied medicine, attended lectures in Jeff. Med. Coll. Phil. graduating in 1855, and practiced his profession in Le Grange, Geo. until 1868, when he returned to the North and established himself in Boston. He had been collecting materials for a history of the Putnams, when he died of pneumonia February, 1881, leaving a wife, Huldah J., d. of Richard Manley of Tallapoosa County, Ala., and two sons and three daughters. He was a member of New Eng. Hist. and Geneal. Society.

1852 ALBION QUINCY RANDALL; b. Bowdoinham, February, 1828. He devoted himself to the work of teaching in Richmond, Yarmouth, and for some years in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. His last service was his second in Richmond, whither he had returned, and where, after long and painful sickness, he died March, 1878.

He did not marry.

1852 WALTER WELLS; b. Salisbury, N. H., November, 1832. He taught the High School, Augusta, for some time. He afterwards lectured on scientific subjects in different places, and in the Western University, at Pittsburg, Pa. He was invited to lecture on physical geography in the scientific department of the College but declined. In 1867 he was placed in charge of the hydrographic survey of Maine, and as one result published "The Water Power of Maine." He also prepared an elementary physical geography, and contributed papers to the periodical press. In 1869 he became Secretary of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers and Planters, and prepared an exhaustive report on the tariff in relation to the objects of that body with special reference to the United States. He was engaged in literary work during his last days though suffering from infirmity and disease which terminated fatally April, 1881.

In 1876 he married Mary Sturdivant of Cumberland, and left a son.

1853 Marcellus Emery; b. Frankfort, July, 1830. For some months he was in charge of the High School in Hallowell, then removed to Woodville, Mi. and was for a short time private tutor in a family. He began legal studies in Evansville, Ind., and completed them in Bangor; was admitted to the Bar in 1857. He edited "The Bangor Daily Union," and then "The Democrat"; was active in politics, and during the war of the rebellion sympathized with the South. He subsequently established the "Bangor Daily Commercial." He was an Alderman of the city; was delegate to the Chicago Democratic Convention in 1868; was twice nominated for Congress by the Democratic party. Those who knew him best testified to "his gentle manners in private life, and his simple, temperate habits, as in contrast with the bitterness of his journalistic and political utterances." Early in 1879 he was afflicted with a malignant carbuncle, which after great suffering caused his death in February of that year.

He did not marry.

1853 Joseph McKeen: b. Brunswick, October, 1832. Son of Joseph McKeen, Esq. He engaged in medical studies with his uncle, James McK. (1817) in Topsham, attended the lectures of the Med. School of the College and in New York, graduating in the former in 1856, and settled in Topsham. In 1862 he was stationed as surgeon of the General Hospital, Fairfax Co., Va. After three years of severe suffering at times from disease of the heart, he died very suddenly January, 1881.

In 1862 he married Frances Caroline Chase of Topsham and left a daughter and a son.

1854 Harrison Gray; b. Danvers, Mass., October, 1827. He read law in Portland and Salem, Mass., was admitted to the Bar and settled in Danvers, where he died February, 1878.

He was unmarried.

1854 Joseph Emerson Smith; b. Wiscasset, March, 1835; son of the late ex-Gov. Samuel E. Smith. He studied law, was admitted to the Lincoln County Bar, and formed a partnership with Henry Ingalls, Esq. In 1869 he removed to Chicago, Ill., where he became partner in the law with his relative, Melville W. Fuller, Esq. (1853). At Wiscasset he was Collector of Customs. In 1864 he was a delegate to the Democratic Convention which nominated Gen. McClellan for the Presidency of the United States. In 1877–8, he was elected to the General Assembly, Illinois; was candidate for Judge of the County Court and was Jury Commissioner of the Federal Courts for the District of Illinois. He found time to indulge in literary work; published "Oak Bridge, an Old-time Story," the scene laid in his native town and vicinity.

Mr. S. married three times: 1. Helen M. Cooper, of Pittston, who died in 1860; 2. Sarah Stuart Babson, of Wiscasset, who died in 1870; 3. Amelia M. Bowie, by whom he had a son. Mr. S. died suddenly of disease of the heart June, 1881.

1855 Samuel Roland Crocker; b. Boston, January, 1837. From college he went to S. Carolina and was editor of "The Standard" three years. Returning North he studied law, and began the practice in Fryeburg. In 1862 he enlisted in the nine months' service in the war. He then settled in Boston as a lawyer, but literary tastes prevailed and in 1865 he became clerk in the House of Ticknor & Fields; was managing editor of the "Commercial Bulletin," 1866–70, and during the last year issued the first number of "The Literary World." In 1874 he accepted a position in the House of Little, Brown & Co.; was a correspondent of the "Sacramento Daily Union," "The Springfield Republican," and contributed to other publications, translated French works, and compiled the Index to the centennial edition of Bancroft's History of the U. S. His cherished project was "The Literary World," and after a severe struggle he made it an authority in current literature. Overwork in time produced its effects on a delicate and sensitive organization. Early in 1877 indications appeared of a paralysis of the brain, disease did its work, and he died August, 1878, leaving a wife and three children.

1856 Edward Williams Thompson; b. Brunswick, February, 1836; son of Gen. A. B. Thompson. He read law with Ebenezer Everett, Esq., Brunswick, completing his studies in Kansas City, Mo. He was admitted to the Bar, and began practice in Brunswick. Early in the late war he raised a company of infantry, was in the first Bull Run battle, distinguished for cool bravery. He then raised the First Maine Battery and served in Louisiana, broke down in health and returned home. He, a third time, raised a company, was commissioned Captain, and subsequently was breveted Major and Lieutenant-Colonel. He left the service in 1868 and resumed his profession in Batesville, Ark., where he died suddenly December, 1878.

In 1865 he married, in Portland, Marie Louise Le Prohon, and had six children, of whom three survive. The above is from the class record.

1857 Charles Henry Reynolds; b. Portland, July, 1835. He engaged in the study of medicine in the Portland School, attended the lectures of this College and in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, graduating in 1861; settled in practice in Bay City, Mich.; was Examining Surgeon early in the war. Failing health compelled his return to New England late in 1865. He died in Turner November, 1877.

1858 Edward Card Conant; b. Alfred, April, 1835. He was employed iu teaching for some time in a western State. He then studied law, graduated LL.B. Harv. 1865, was admitted to the Bar; in 1866 removed to the South and engaged in mercantile business, but his plans of life were arrested by a severe and distressing illness of thirteen years, and he died at the Asylum in Providence, R. I., September, 1879.

1858 Charles Parkman Loring; b. Danville, July, 1834. He studied medicine, graduating in 1863 at Bellevue Med. Coll., and settled in Providence, R. I.; was successful and respected. He died of diphtheria January, 1877.

1858 Andrew Jackson Thompson; b. Guilford, N. H., July, 1834. He studied medicine and graduated Harv. 1862. He was Surgeon in a N. H. regiment and Med. Director on Gen. Davidson's staff. He then practiced his profession in Laconia, N. H., where he secured an extensive practice. After some years he removed to Salem, Mass., where he was City Physician and was gaining reputation, when he was arrested by physical disability. After a year of suffering he died in Salem, April, 1879. He was a member of the N. H. Legislature, and was prominent in his profession and in public affairs.

He married Miss E. J. Wilson of Topsham, and left two sons.

1859 Henry Dearborn Hutchins; b. Fryeburg, November, 1837. He studied law with D. R. Hastings, Esq., then of Lovell, and practiced for a time in Lovell. Through infirm health he removed to a farm in Fryeburg, and eventually to his early home, where he died June, 1880, of meningitis, leaving a wife and three children. He was a successful teacher in earlier life, and for a time Supervisor of Schools.

1860 Charles William Gardiner; b. Hallowell, May, 1841. In the late war he entered the army, rose from being corporal to the captaincy and was mustered out Brevet Major. He was wounded at Fair Oaks and taken prisoner in the second Bull Run battle. On leaving the army he held a clerkship in the Treasury for a time. Becoming connected with railroad management, he at length was made agent of a railroad in Iowa. He had suffered from pulmonary difficulties for some time, when he died of consumption at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, April, 1880.

1860 William Dudley Haley; b. Bath, June, 1837. He read law with Washington Gilbert and Fred. Sewall, Esqrs., Bath, and was admitted to practice. He served a few months as 2d Lieut. in the war, and as Quartermaster. He held for a time a position in the Custom House, Bath.

He married Julia A. Lawrence, of Yarmouth, and had three children. He died January, 1880, leaving a son and daughter.

1862 Charles Widgery Milliken; b. Buxton, March, 1836. He studied medicine, attended lectures and grad. M. D. at the University of Michigan, and settled in Shursburg, Wis. His health compelled his return to New England. Disease of the brain was developed, and he died June, 1880.

1863 Gideon Libby; b. Saco, March, 1837. After teaching two years in Maine, he pursued theological study at the Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., graduating in 1867, and entered on the work of the ministry. He was for a time mathematical instructor in Rock River Seminary of that State, but resumed the pastorate, in which he was "active, conscientious, devoted and successful." After a sickness of a few weeks he died in Bethel, Ill., September, 1879.

He married Mary Quigley, of Sterling, Ill.

1864 John Emery Dow; b. Portland, August, 1842. He studied law, graduated at the Harvard Law School in 1866, and settled in the profession in New York in co-partnership with his classmate, James McKeen. He gave promise of success and reputation when, arrested by a disease of the brain, he was removed to the Insane Hospital at Augusta, and died May, 1878.

He married Mary E., d. of George F. Dunning, Esq., Brooklyn, N. Y., and had two children, both of whom have died.

1865 Thomas Davee Anderson; b. Belfast, May, 1839. He read law after graduation, attended the lectures of the Columbia Law School, Washington graduating in 1868, and pursued his profession in Washington with good prospects until 1878. He was then seized with disease of the brain, which terminated in death October, 1879, at Portland.

He did not marry.

1870 Frederic Ernest Hanson; b. Buxton, March, 1850. He was successful as a teacher, and had won respect in Ohio. He died at Chicago of pneumonia, May, 1880.

1872 Walton Olney Hooker; b. Gardiner. He followed the sea, became captain of the ship Henry Moses, of Bath, and died in Rio Janeiro August, 1878 of small pox, respected and confided in by his employers.

1872 Freeman Alonzo Ricker; b. Ossipee, N. H., October, 1849. He suffered from precarious health, and died at Martin's, N. Y., December, 1877.

1875 Reuben Richard Baston; b. Bridgton, February, 1850. He pursued medical studies, graduated M. D. 1879 in the Medical School of the College, and settled in his profession in Cape Elizabeth. He died of diphtheria, September, 1880.

1876 Orville Clark Gordon; b. Centreville, February, 1845. He died January, 1880 of typhoid pneumonia.

1877 Frank Josselyn Lynde; b. Bangor, October, 1855. He had been engaged in the business of a druggist in Portland two years; in attempting to enter upon a train in motion at Old Orchard, October, 1880, he fell and was killed.

1877 Edward Clarence Metcalf; b. Brunswick, April, 1857. Having graduated S. B., he soon found employment as engineer at Memphis, Tenn. in the drainage operations of that city after the ravages by yellow fever. Seized with malarial fever, he returned to New England, engaged in professional work at Newport, R. I., suffered relapse and died July, 1880.
